IOWA CHAPTER

Re: Docket NOI-2011-0003, Utility Coal Plant Planning

It is now time for the electric utilities in Iowa to:

- Transition electric generation away from coal and nuclear energy to renewable energy, such as wind or solar;
- Shutter the oldest, most polluting coal plants;
- Install modern pollution-control equipment on the newest coal plants, where it is cost-effective; and
- Upgrade the grid to handle the renewable energy.

Additionally the Iowa Utilities Board should:

- Provide the regulatory framework to allow all Iowans, including customers of Rural Electric Cooperatives, municipals, and investor-owned utilities, to install distributed generation on their homes and businesses, including allowing a standard connection and allowing the owner to move excess energy to the grid at a fair and competitive price;
- Encourage the utilities to increase their work in energy efficiency and conservation; and
- Implement policies to allow community wind and solar projects to be built.

Some of the pollutants the utilities have spewed into the air for many years pose serious health effects to humans. The costs of those health effects are now borne by the individual sufferer and the community in the form of higher medical costs, poorer quality of life, shorter life spans and higher insurance premiums. These costs do not appear in the unit price that customers pay for electricity. The utility companies know that they need to reduce their emissions. They have known for many years that the Environmental Protection Agency would at some point require the installation of pollution-control technology or that they would need to transition to cleaner renewable sources of energy like wind and solar.

Nuclear energy is not a satisfactory choice for generating electricity. The waste from nuclear reactors is radioactive for thousands of years and must be carefully stored to prevent environmental contamination. There is no permanent depository for high-level nuclear waste. It is time to stop making more nuclear waste.

Yes, I want to sign the petition to the IUB!
